PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Sherry Hylton

“Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, the people he chose for his inheritance.” Psalm 33:12

This has been the most difficult article for me to write. It may not seem like it, but I truly put a lot of thought and prayer into them. The issue has been that I have had TOO MANY thoughts and ideas, and I couldn't seem to narrow it down. Ironically, I forgot that I needed to have my article in to Rausie by last Friday, and I have ended up writing this on the evening of our National Election. Do you have any idea where my mind is now? I don't like politics, and I don't watch it on TV. I have no desire to watch the results coming in tonight. However, I do care about what will happen in our country in the days to come, and I have prayed, and will continue to pray many prayers. I am a simple person and very naïve, in many respects. I don't understand that what I think are “the right things to do”, are not always the same as what others believe. I know that God is my creator, and that I have a roadmap for my life in the words of the Bible. However, I don't think I'm alone in feeling that our country has moved away from the principles upon which our nation was founded. So, I will continue to pray. I came upon a speech by Ronald Reagan that he gave to the American people on February 6, 1986, that I feel is still appropriate today. I would like to share them:

“The time has come to turn to God and reassert our trust in Him for the healing of America. . . Our country is in need of and ready for a spiritual renewal. Today, we utter no prayer more fervently than the ancient prayer for peace on Earth.

*“The Lord bless you and keep you; the Lord make His face to shine upon you and be gracious unto you; the Lord lift up His countenance upon you and give you peace. . . .”
And God bless you all.”*

I would like to finish up by sharing some information with you. Linda Kersey has been having some health issues that she feels will keep her from completing her term as Peace and Social Concerns Secretary. I would like to ask you all to keep Linda in your prayers. You all know Linda, so I’m sure it won’t surprise you to know that she even recruited her replacement before she even contacted me. We are very blessed to have Esther Creed from Concord Friends, join our Board. I know that most of you know Esther and love her as much as I do.

Also, as we enter the holiday season and will be fortunate enough to spend time with our friends and family enjoying our bounty, I ask that you keep those who have been affected in our state by Hurricane Helene in your thoughts and prayers. The outpouring of support that has been shown to our mountain friends, warms my heart, and makes me proud to be a part of this great state and country.

Happy Thanksgiving, Merry Christmas, and Happy New Year to all! May we show God how grateful we are to live in a country where we are free to worship Him, and enjoy the freedoms given us through Jesus Christ, our Lord and Savior

Through her untiring efforts she initiated the movement which developed into the Woman's Missionary Union of Friends in America which is known today as the United Society of Friends Women International (USFWI).

John 3:16

LITERATURE*Sarah Cox*

“Bless Be the Tie That Binds” is an old and familiar hymn that was written by John Fawcett in 1772. Back in October, I attended a family reunion that I have been going to all of my life. This old hymn has been sung at the conclusion of our family meeting every year. Everyone has the words memorized, but there is a hymnal handy, just in case!

I love this old song. It talks about how we are bound together through love, fellowship, thoughts, hopes and fears, cares and woes.

A family, be it through blood or Christian brotherhood, should love and take care of each other. We should pray for each other, lifting up to God each other’s burdens, needs and praises. We should work, play, cry, laugh and pray together.

I’m blessed with that kind of family and church family. Can’t imagine how life would be without them!

In October, we had a terrible tragedy in the mountains of North Carolina that affected so many families. Their lives will never be the same. Think of losing everything you own and even worse, your family members and friends in just a few minutes or hours.

But we have seen and heard the incredible stories about how our neighbors to the west of us, did not give up and did not lose faith. They felt the love and concern of family, friends and strangers. There was an immediate outpouring of volunteers, supplies and funds to assist our mountain neighbors in their steps to recovery. They felt “the tie that binds.”

As we end this year and begin a new one, I pray that each of us will remember to share our Christian love with our family, friends and neighbors, near and far and we will “be joined in heart” through Christ Jesus our Lord.

Hope you are enjoying your books.

If I can help you with additional books, let me know.

Yours in Christian love,

Sarah Cox

CHILDREN AND YOUTH EDUCATION

Pat Core

I am sitting at my kitchen table on a brisk, cool fall morning in late October anticipating the busy days ahead. Once again, I am reminded of just how quickly the time is passing. There are many plans to be made in order not to forget or omit any detail that is an important part of the family Thanksgiving tradition. This time of remembering is followed by one of the busiest and most festive seasons of the year—Christmas. Both holidays are rich with spiritual meaning. It seems that commercialization dominates the scene by placing focus on things that take away from counting our blessings and remembering the true reason for the season.

My thoughts turn to how we instill appropriate and lasting values into our children's lives. I immediately think of where we learn the purpose of both these holidays as well as all about our Lord God and Jesus Christ—The Bible. The Bible is often seen as a book of instructions for how to live. It should be taught and imparted to our children.

Probably a good beginning would be with telling stories. It is one thing to tell a child that Jesus was born in a manger on Christmas Day. It is important to explain why He was born. He dwelt among mankind to show the way to live. As we take Jesus' lead, we will be following His example.

A few suggestions that I have found helpful in teaching children and youth to understand the Bible are:

- Start with prayer
- Be a model, practice what you preach
- Keep the stories interesting and interactive
- Be consistent
- Keep it fun

Let us do our best to help our younger generation to have an understanding of the greatest book in print—The Holy Bible.

“Keeping the Giant Alive: Nurturing Hope and Imagination in Challenging Times”
by Rania Maayeh, HEAD OF SCHOOL Ramallah Friends School Newsletter

Writing amidst the ongoing war and genocide is an incredibly challenging task. Daily, we are confronted with heartbreaking news of the violence and suffering endured by our people in Gaza and across the West Bank. The impact on our school community is profound; checkpoints have become increasingly unbearable, with many of our staff enduring long waits, often arriving home well past 9:00 PM after inching through car by car. Our days are frequently disrupted by sudden incursions, adding layers of stress to our already difficult lives. Yet, despite these overwhelming circumstances, we persist in our efforts to provide the best education possible for our students. In the face of such adversity, hope remains a guiding light for us. This hope, along with our unwavering faith in justice, fuels our belief that humanity will ultimately prevail—and that our children will grow to lead a better world.

Recently, I stood before a reproduction of N.C. Wyeth's painting "The Giant," which now hangs in one of our offices. The painting carries a poignant history: it is displayed at Westtown School since 1923 in memory of William Engle (1891 – 1916), a talented student and artist who tragically died young from tuberculosis. Wyeth created "The Giant" as a tribute to Engle's love for the sea and his imaginative spirit. In the artwork, children gaze up at a massive cloud shaped like a giant figure, capturing their imagination and evoking a sense of wonder about something beyond their reach.

Reflecting on "The Giant" during these turbulent times led me to ponder what it might symbolize for our own children. In the painting, those children look up at this mysterious, towering figure with awe and curiosity, perhaps envisioning hope, strength, or dreams that extend far beyond their immediate reality. For them, the giant may represent a promise of something larger and better just out of reach. In considering the minds of our own children—both in the West Bank and in Gaza—I find myself questioning whether that “giant” still exists for them. Do they dare to dream of a life beyond the constraints imposed by separation walls, checkpoints, and daily violence? Or has the weight of war and hardship dimmed that vision?

As a Quaker school, it is our mission to keep that “giant” alive within each child. It is essential that they continue to imagine, dream, and believe in something grand and bright beyond today’s struggles. We are committed to providing an environment where imagination and hope can flourish—a space where each child’s Inner Light can shine brightly, encouraging them to dream big and believe in their capacity to create a brighter future. We believe that within each child lies the potential to nurture seeds of change and cultivate a world where they can thrive with dignity. This mission resonates deeply with the foundation of our values-based education, which is interwoven into every aspect of our curriculum and activities. It brings to mind this season when we embrace programs like our cherished White Gifts tradition. Through this annual event, students come together as a community to give back and share in meaningful ways. This practice instills empathy, connectedness, and responsibility within them; it demonstrates that even small acts can illuminate darkness for others.

The magic of "The Giant" parallels this sentiment by instilling in them an understanding that they are part of something much greater than themselves, a community grounded in care and mutual concern. It serves as a reminder that they possess the capacity to create change, inspire hope, and build a future rooted in kindness and resilience. By preserving these traditions and values, we create a sanctuary within our school where imagination, hope, and compassion can thrive even amidst adversity. We teach our students that although the world may appear daunting, they have the power not only to envision but also to create a brighter future.

The dreams of children remind us that even during the most difficult times—amid war and genocide—there is an urgent need to nurture the “Giant” of imagination and hope within each child. Our White Gifts tradition exemplifies one way we cultivate this spirit, teaching our students that they too can be beacons of light and agents of change.

In Friendship,
Rania Maayeh
